There are seventy-seven cases of divorce on the chancery docket of the Sangamon county circuit court, for the trial at the coming term. Sixty-six are new cases, and eleven were concluded from the May term. Some thirty cases were stricken from the docket by Judge Zane at the May term or the number on the docket at present would be 107.

Jasper Frazee, who was tried before Squire Curtis last week for carrying gaming devices, was sandbagged in Danville the other night. The News of yesterday says: "Jasper Frazee, the man who was sandbagged just across the Wabash bridge Saturday night asserted yesterday that he remembers two men following him around on East Main street thence across the Wabash bridge but don't remember what followed. He will be sent to his home in Decatur to-day."

County Clerk Hardy issued marriage licenses Monday to the following couples: Amos Berger and Miss Ella Stroup, of Maroa; Andrew J. Bookler, of Long Creek, and Miss Margaret E. Bookler, of Lovington; John B. Campbell, of Maroa, and Miss Hassy Krage, of Latham; Chas. A. Bean and Miss Mary A. Gregory, of Blue Mound. Miss Gregory was only seventeen years old, but her parents gave their consent to the marriage.

Mr. Cherry, the son of Susie Knox, who left this city suddenly Monday morning, heard of the child yesterday. She had gone to her home in Grayville.

Greatest fall stock of boots and shoes ever shown in Decatur, now ready at L. L. Ferriss & Co.'s at prices to suit customers. No better goods in the world. $26t

The democratic meeting at the tabernacle last evening was greatly interfered with by the weather, but four or five hundred persons managed to get around and hear the speech delivered by General W. P. Anderson, of Mt. Vernon. He was seated in the tabernacle by means of the Democratic Plug Hat Band. He carried their neat green array, which make the finest appearance of any we have seen this fall. The boys were headed by the Hibernian band which disengaged good music. Other meetings held in the city kept many democrats from hearing General Anderson. Every working man and every republican should have heard him. He discussed the political questions fairly and impartially, and when some one in the audience asked about Blaine's Kentucky marriage the general said: "Never mind that, it is a part of Mr. Blaine's private life, and I am only talking of his political acts." A number of ladies were present and enjoyed the excellent address. General Anderson was introduced by Mr. Brad Durfee, who prefaced his remarks with a few complimentary allusions to Governor Cleveland, Hendricks and Harrison. General Anderson said he was here to discuss political questions that would be decided at the ballot box in November, and said although the tariff question was a dry subject, he intended to talk on it for a time, which he did to the satisfaction of all his hearers. He said the democrats were not in favor of free trade, but the contrary were in favor of a tariff for revenue and had been ever since 1810, while on the other hand the republicans were in favor of a high protective tariff. The former means a low tax for the expenses of the government and the other means a high tariff that does not protect. A tariff is the tax levied on foreign imports. He took as example of the failure of a protective tariff, the one article, blankets. On them a tariff of 104 per cent. is levied. In the year of 1881 twenty million dollars of blankets were bought in this country, while only $200,000 worth were imported. The high tariff permits American manufacturers to sell their own price, and almost prohibits the importation. The tax eventually paid by the consumer does not therefore, go into the treasury of this country, but into the pockets of the manufacturers. General Anderson said that a tariff of revenue would cause our manufacturers to close their factories to save labor, on account of the high protective tariff. He said it would make more than there are to day, he would hate to see the time. He said at every mention of a reduction of the tariff in congress, manufacturers would flock to Washington and beg congress not to make the reduction, on account of the poor laboring man. They begged, almost on their knees, as I did for his Mulligan letter. Gen. Anderson spoke from 1:30 to 2:30, having been a member of several firms. The workmen, who do not like the tariff, it is always the last to enter. The claim that a high protective tariff benefits the farmer is false, in assertion that General Anderson proved to his hearers. Forty percent of their wheat crop is shipped to England and sold against the cheapest labor under the sun. The republicans, however, tell the farmers they protect him by putting a twenty per cent. tariff on wheat, but this cannot protect them when the wheat is all shipped the other way. Under Robt. G. Walker's tariff for revenue, which the republicans are pleased to call free trade, everything was more prosperous than now. From 1850 to 1860 farms increased 103 per cent. Comparing ten years of high protective tariff, from 1870 to 1880, the speaker showed that the increase in farms was 35 per cent. and in manufactures only 58 per cent. Gen. Anderson did not ask the audience to believe these statements on his say so. His authority was the report of republican tariff commissioners. He read a part of the labors committee's report in the republican U. S. senate, in which they said wages were not sufficient to maintain a laborer and his family, and that labor was becoming more degraded each year. The speaker presented himself with other unassailable facts to his hearers, and they were received with loud applause. He gave a complete and comprehensible account of the Mulligan letters, and not only this, but he showed Mr. James G. Blaine, and his principal backer, "Willy Wally" Phelps, to be owners in the great Hocking Valley mines where men struck against a big cut in wages, and their places were substituted by imported pauper laborers, who were escorted to the mines under guard of the militia. The New York Tribune, the only influential eastern paper supporting the "jiggo candidate," was his incorporator. General Anderson closed his remarks with a glowing compliment to Governor Cleveland, and Hon. Carter Harrison and the same were received with appreciative applause. His speech was decidedly fair and impartial, and was one of the best delivered here this campaign.

The funeral of Charles W. Whitelock took place yesterday afternoon, at three o'clock, from the family residence on West Wood street. The services were conducted by Rev. W. H. Prestley of the Presbyterian church and the funeral was attended by Marion Chapter No. 8 A. F. and A. M. and Dunham Post No. 141, G. A. R. After the services at the house, the procession, headed by the G. A. R. band, took up its weary march to the city of the dead, where the mortal remains of a kind father, a loving husband, a true friend and a good citizen were laid at rest. The remains were followed to their final resting place by many sorrowing friends.
